LOSES POINTS FOR PACKERS

Attorney General Picks Flaws In Arguments Presented By John S. Miller.

ERROR REGARDING THE VIOLATIONS

Counsel Claims That His Clients Did Nothing In Contravention Of The Law When Rebates Were Secured.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPTS-M'RAE.]
Washington, Jan. 7.—The packers encountered a setback in the hearing of their case before the supreme court Friday. John S. Miller, in closing an argument that occupied most of the day, asserted that at the time the government instituted proceedings the packers violated no law in securing rebates from the railroads.

Justice White appreciated the importance of the contention and presumably its error. He demanded an explanation. Mr. Miller stated that while under the interstate commerce laws the railroads violated the act of congress in granting rebates the shipper did not in accepting them or in doing all they could to secure them; that the Elkins law, passed since the proceedings were commenced, imposes a penalty upon shippers.

Points Out Error.
Attorney General Moody did not permit the opportunity to pass to weaken Mr. Miller's argument by displaying to the court that Mr. Miller was in error, and caused several justices to smile by showing that under the interstate commerce act the shipper as well as the railroad is punishable when a rebate is given.

Mr. Miller criticized the injunction as a decree as broad as the law and wanted to know whether the courts were to exercise legislative functions. The packers were entitled to know in what respect they had violated the law and not be restrained from doing what congress states in the statutes to be unlawful.

Interferes With Business.
This degree presents interference with the business of dealers such as never before was attempted, said Mr. Miller. "There is no allegation of specific contracts, no time or place given where contracts alleged to be in restraint of trade were made; nothing by which defendants can ascertain what transactions are referred to in the injunction. Defendants are put to a plea of guilty or not guilty, and charges more specific than those in the government's bill have been found not sufficient in a mere indictment."

Justice White wanted to know whether the packers would have the government mention day and hour of each offense, and Justice Harlan whether they had asked for a bill of particulars. To the latter question Mr. Miller replied in the negative.

Affects All Commerce.
If the decree against the packers stands the same proceedings can be brought against "every considerable business in the United States," Mr. Miller announced, "because it is well known that almost all large enterprises are engaged in interstate commerce in the sense the government charges against the defendants."

Explanation was made of the problems confronting packers in disposing of their products to justify the arrangements which exist between them to guarantee in advance a market by restricting production and sales. The great demand for meat was given as the cause for the comparatively high prices, and the flooding of the market with live stock as the cause for the comparatively low price of beef on the hoof. The black list kept by the packers was explained to be a list of delinquents.

Attorney General Argues.
Attorney General Moody began his argument for the government, but spoke only a few minutes.

Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes announced during the hearing that he is the owner of stock in stockyards in Chicago and Kansas City and asked whether this interest would necessitate his leaving the bench while the court is considering the case. Attorney General Moody promptly informed the justice that the stockyards companies are not involved in the case.

FARM PRODUCT PRICES ARE UP

Growing Crops Are In Favorable Condition. Giving Encouragement to the Count Merchants to Order Goods for Spring.

Chicago, Jan. 7.—The weekly review of Chicago trade, published by R. G. Dun & Co., says: "Results of last year's business, viewed as a whole, present a better showing than was expected, this being entirely accounted for by the rapid recovery in the consumption of commodities throughout the last quarter. Manufacturing returns are not equal, but most of the leading distributive branches of general merchandise exhibit gains over 1903, clothing and dry goods being conspicuous in this respect."

"The new year trade opened under encouraging conditions, wholesome confidence in the future forming the basis of the new effort. The outlook generally seems to be gratifying in all lines of industry, and this is supplemented by the favorable state of the growing crops. Local dealings this week were of the normal volume. Frequent re-orders indicate that stocks of winter goods already are well broken into, while country advices show that sales have been well up to expectations, particularly so during the holidays."

Farmers Continue Prosperous.
"Agriculturists continue to realize profitably upon their products, and this assures the means for liberal purchases of necessities and for improvements. Good reasons appear for expecting a large trade in spring staples, and salesmen are now actively canvassing with fair success in the interior. Notwithstanding difficulties of transportation due to severe weather, railroad earnings are larger than a year ago, and an unusually heavy movement is noted of farm products and manufactured materials. Mercantile collections show more promptness, defaults in this direction having decreased, and the failures include few of importance."

Manufacturing Outlook.
"Manufacturing operations started auspiciously, demand and prices being on a more clearly defined basis, with raw material and fuel in ample provision. Large plants employing thousands of men were reopened, and it is seen that new factories and additions to old ones are under rapid construction. Iron and steel display great strength and encouragement for further activity, finished materials being in well sustained request, and pig iron holding steady."

MITCHELL TALKS OF THE PROSPECTS

ADVOCATE FOR THE IRRIGATION SYSTEM GIVES A PAPER.

SHOWS GREAT BENEFITS.

Congratulates Country On Roosevelt's Election And Stands On The Question.

At the recent great American Forestry Congress held at Washington, D. C., among a number of addresses was one by Guy Elliot Mitchell, secretary of the National Irrigation Association on "The Close Relation Between Forestry and Irrigation." In part it is as follows: The connection between a comprehensive system of forestry and irrigation is a local one, said the speaker, affecting but one-half of the territory of the United States, the arid region, whereas forestry itself, as affecting water supply, is a purely national question, as well as a local one in each state and drainage basin. For this reason the new forestry movement has a country-wide interest, and while California is alarmed over the destruction of her forests and the drying up of her streams, the life blood of her communities, Pennsylvania and New England are likewise exercised over the threatened danger to their water sources, necessary for city and town supplies and for power production. In the west the destruction of forests has an intimate bearing upon the capacity of the states to sustain population, for population results from irrigation, irrigation depends upon water supply and the water supply is furnished from the melting snows caught and held by the forests clothing the great mountain chains of the Sierras and the Rockies.

"Three things are necessary to produce a maximum water supply for irrigation.

First, to prevent wholesale destruction of timbered water sheds.

Second, to substitute therefore a rational system of forest cutting.

Third, where possible to a forest and reforest lands where the value of the water supply warrants this most advanced and expensive feature of the American forestry plan.

Stop Waste First

The first of these should receive the first consideration; the present waste should be checked and the second part of the plan adopted before it is too late and the third and most expensive part becomes the only remedy. For every thousand dollars now expended in carrying out the first two provisions of the plan, where all that is needed is to husband and direct the resources of nature, it is perhaps not an exaggeration to say that a million dollars and much more will be required to attain the same results through forest planting.

The latter will perhaps present a subject for future rather than present application on a large scale holds out wonderful eventful possibilities. The statement of the government Forester, the El Paso Irrigation Forester, that "liberal experiments have proven that enormous areas of the west can be systematically planted into forests with the effect of restoring streams which have disappeared and creating new streams, holds out new and unknown possibilities of entrancing interest to the forest and water student.

But what is needed today is more strength to the arm of American Forestry for the immediate prosecution of its carefully outlined plans to save what we have now set before us. The two greatest problems before this country today, problems well worthy the expenditure by the nation of millions and hundreds of millions of dollars instead of thousands and hundreds of thousands of dollars, are forestry and irrigation. They will return such expenditure, principle and interest, many times over, and the carrying out of the policy will demonstrate its wisdom easily within the present generation.

A Practical Business Plan
The workings of the Forestry Bureau have come within the past two years to be recognized as a practical, hard headed business proposition. The present Forester, Gifford Pinchot, when criticized for his enthusiasm in the setting apart of Forest Reserves and the substitution of aesthetic considerations for those of practical lumbering made the notable response:

"I am not a preserver of trees. I am a cutter-down of trees. It is the essence of forestry to have trees harvested when they are ripe and followed by successive crops. The human race is not destroyed because the individual dies. Every tree must die but the forests can be extended and multiplied."

The country is fortunate in its possession of Gifford Pinchot as government Forester; the President is fortunate in having a man to carry out his advanced forestry policy, who is interested only in conserving one of the greatest of America's natural resources and in this carrying a monument which will live for all ages. In this connection the speaker urged the enactment of the pending bill, recommended by the President providing for the consolidation of all the forestry bureaus and divisions into one organization under the Secretary of Agriculture. He also called attention to the necessity for the repeal of the timber and stone law and the substitution of the bill which has passed the Senate and is now before the House providing for the sale of stumpage, the title to public timberlands to remain in the government thus insuring their natural restoration.

Immediate Legislation Important

Both of these bills have the unqualified endorsement of the Chief Forester and the various heads of bureaus and departments engaged in forest work, including the President himself whose messages to Congress deal specifically with this matter. Another law which the speaker condemned as inimical to the interests of the country is what is known as the Forest Reserve scrip law. Under this law, he stated, enormous areas in the Forest Reserves owned by individuals or corporations, prior to their creation, have been demanded and then turned back to the government and exchanged for the most valuable public timber land which could be found. The speaker quoted an utterance of President Roosevelt as a poignant indication of better things to come in all matters of land legislation. The President said:

"Now keep in mind that the whole object of forest protection is, as I have said again and again, the making and maintaining of prosperous homes. Every phase of the land policy in the United States is as it by right ought to be, directed to the upbuilding of the home-maker. The one sure test of all public land legislation should be: Does it help to make and keep prosperous homes? If it does, the legislation is good. If it does not, the legislation is bad. Certain of our land laws have been twisted into an improper use, and it is necessary, in my judgment, that there should be a revision of the land laws and a cutting out of such provisions from them as in actual practice tend to make possible the acquisition of large tracts for speculative purposes or for the purpose of leasing to others."

THE VALUE OF CHARCOAL.

Few People Know How Useful it is in Preserving Health and Beauty.

Nearly everybody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disinfectant and purifier in nature, but few realize its value when taken into the human system for the same cleansing purpose.

Charcoal is a remedy that the more you take of it the better; it is not a drug at all, but simply absorbs the poisons and impurities always present in the stomach and intestines and carries them out of the system.

Charcoal sweetens the breath after smoking, drinking or after eating onions and other odorous vegetables.

Charcoal effectually clears and improves the complexion, it whitens the teeth and further acts as a natural and eminently safe cathartic.

It absorbs the injurious gases which collect in the stomach and bowels; it disinfects the mouth and throat from the poison of catarrh.

All druggists sell charcoal in one form or another, but probably the best charcoal and the most for the money is in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges; they are composed of the finest powdered Willow charcoal, and other harmless antiseptics in tablet form or rather in the form of large, pleasant tasting lozenges, the charcoal being mixed with honey.

The daily use of these lozenges will soon tell in a much improved condition of the general health, better complexion, sweeter breath and purer blood, and the beauty of it is, that no possible harm can result from the continued use of them, but one the contrary, great benefit.

A Buffalo physician in speaking of the benefits of charcoal, says: I advise Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges to all patients suffering from gas in stomach and bowels, and to clear the complexion and purify the breath, mouth and throat. I also believe the liver is greatly benefited by the daily use of them; they cost but twenty-five cents a box at drug stores, and although in some sense a patent preparation, yet I believe I get more and better charcoal in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges than in any of the ordinary charcoal tablets."

WHAT IT COST TO RUN THE SCHOOL

State School For The Blind Cost Less Than Any Other State Institution.

The State School for the Blind at Janesville is one of the most worthy of the charitable institutions maintained by the state of Wisconsin, caring for a class of unfortunates peculiarly afflicted; at once making their burdens lighter and their lives the happier, while it prepares them for useful work and enables them to become self-supporting. This institution is also one of the least expensive to the state. For the past month the blind institute cost the state $4,145.73, the smallest sum spent at any of the nine state institutions, with the single exception of that at Sparta.

The expenses of the nine state charitable, penal and corrective institutions under the administration of the state board of control were unusually high during the month of December, aggregating the sum of $80,152.16. The reason for this was that the month was the final one of the old year and the board and several superintendents of the institutions all ways try to clear up all the old bills before the close of the year. In addition to this some large coal bills were paid. At the home for the feeble minded some $800 was paid on work covered by special funds and at the state insane hospital at Mendota special fund payments on building contracts were made amounting to $5,492.15. The expenses for the month for the several institutions, as audited by the board of control at its recent meeting, were as follows:

State hospital, Mendota.....	$16,522.17
Northern hospital, Winnebago.....	13,712.07
School for deaf, Delavan.....	4,423.87
School for blind, Janesville.....	4,145.73
Industrial school, Waubesa.....	3,518.08
State prison, Waupun.....	10,646.10
Public school, Sparta.....	3,558.58
Feeble minded, Chippewa Falls.....	13,098.58

SCHOOL TEAM WAS AGAIN VICTORIOUS

Defeated Y. M. C. A. Basketball Five By Score Of 18 To 14 Last Evening.

In the high school gymnasium last evening the Y. M. C. A. basketball team again went down to defeat before the high school five. The victors took the lead early in the game and kept it through to the end. Only once did it seem that the score might possibly stand otherwise than it did. This was in the last half when the school team after several attempts failed to raise their score of fourteen points and the association five brought theirs to twelve. At the end of the first half the score stood 11 to 7 in favor of the high school and when time was finally called on the second half the score was: High school, 18; Y. M. C. A., 14. Sonnett of the high school team did the best individual work of any player on the floor and succeeded in placing the ball in the basket the greatest number of times. The school team played the most scientific game, passing the ball almost at will. Lee for the association played an excellent game. The Y. M. C. A. team was: forwards—Murdock and Matthews, center—Palmer, guards—Lee and Wilbur. The school five was: forwards—Carle and Morse, center—Caldow, guards—Sonnett and Galbraith.

Many Of The Exhibits At The St. Louis Exposition Were Donated To It.

Madison, Wis.—The first steps have just been taken for the establishment of the University of Wisconsin of a commercial museum in connection with the commerce course. Since the establishment of the course in commerce five years ago, the collection of material for a commercial museum has been contemplated, but not until very recently has anything tangible been accomplished. The recent fair at St. Louis, bringing together as it did commercial products from all parts of the world in a form suitable for the purposes of study, has made it possible for the university to get the nucleus of a collection of typical commercial products with which to begin its commercial museum.

Get Collections
Professor Burchell, who has charge of the course in business administration, and Dr. Taylor, who is in charge of the courses in commercial geography and agricultural industry, visited the exposition during its closing days and succeeded in making a collection of between 2,000 and 3,000 specimens. These consist chiefly of raw products of commercial importance to the United States, from all parts of the world, selected and arranged with view to showing their origin, variety, forms in various stages of production, industrial uses, etc.

Many Specimens
The collection includes specimens of cotton from the southern states, Peru, Brazil, Egypt, Porto Rico, and Argentine Republic, together with the various by-products of the cotton industry, such as cotton seed oil, oil cake, fertilizer, etc. There are also specimens of wool from the Rocky mountain states, New Zealand, and Argentine Republic; flax from Holland, New Zealand, Tennessee, and Kentucky; sisal from Cuba, Brazil, and Honduras; silk cocoons and raw silk from a number of different countries. There is also an excellent collection of Argentine grains and woods; of Maryland soils; of indigenous rubber from Africa; of sugar cane from Louisiana and Texas, and all grades of its sugar, molasses, and syrup products; of rice in all products and grades, together with the products into which it enters; of spices from Ceylon; and of the different grades of tobacco, coffee and teas from the various countries in which they are produced. The specimens in all cases were contributed by the exhibitors, so that the only cost to the university was that of collecting, packing, and shipping. Many of the exhibitors expressed great interest in the new project and gave liberally of whatever was desired for the museum.

No Museum
Unfortunately at the present time the university has no place suitable for such a museum and consequently the specimens have not as yet been placed on exhibition. The growth of the school of commerce has been so rapid that it has outgrown its quarters, and the rooms which it now occupies in South Hall are entirely inadequate for its purposes. If additional buildings are provided for by legislative appropriation, in accordance with the recommendation of President Van Hise in his recent report to the regents, it will be possible to provide a suitable place for these valuable specimens in a room which will be set aside for the commercial museum.

News for the Railroad Men.

St. Paul Road
Royal Mead is laying off on account of the sickness of his wife.

Switchman W. A. Brennan is off duty.

Thursday morning while firing on the switch-engine Edwin Mead was the victim of a queer accident. The engine was taking water when the weights balancing the spout broke from the rope, allowing the spout to drop down. Mead, who was standing on the tender, was caught in the back by the falling spout and pinned to the tender. Before the water could be turned off he was thoroughly drenched but continued to work the remainder of the way. He is now laying off on account of a strained back, the result of the accident. He will be able to return to work in the course of a few days.

North-Western Road
Engineer J. O. Selleck is laying off the Watertown passenger for about a week.

Engineer F. A. Shumway has again reported for work.

The fact that the sky serves as a roof to the "bug house" in several places does not keep the visitors away.

Local business on the North-Western road is at present exceedingly heavy, while the through business is exceptionally light. This morning there was a string of about thirty-five or forty cars all consigned to firms or shops located on the tracks on South River street.

Brakeman Bay Reed of Baraboo is now on the Janesville-Pond du Lac run with Conductor A. D. Campbell.

W. B. Kendall, who is in charge of the Janesville-De Kalb run, is taking a vacation. Conductor Geo. Baxter is looking after the passengers during his absence.

Railway Briefs.
The Illinois Central railroad has opened its reconstructed draw bridge across the Missouri at Omaha. The entire bridge is of steel, and has been constructed at a cost of $1,500,000.

The Western Passenger Association has agreed to make half rates for persons attending the inauguration of President Roosevelt on March 4. Return limit of ten days will be allowed on the tickets, which is more than has been granted heretofore. Similar rates will be made by the Eastern lines.

To hasten the work of irrigation in the West and Southwest the railroads have agreed to make very low fares to laborers. To prevent other persons from taking advantage of the low rates, they will be granted only to parties of five or more who can show that they intend to work on the irrigation projects of the government or private concerns. Among the lines of the Santa Fe, Southern Pacific, and Burlington railroads many irrigation schemes are being carried out, and work on many others will be commenced in a short time.

Early Morning Fire: At an early hour this morning an alarm of fire was turned in from box 515, at the Five Points. The cause was a small blaze in the switch shanty which was soon extinguished with the chemical engine. The loss was nominal.

Andrew Carnegie Has Been Liberal In Donation To Wisconsin Cities.

Andrew Carnegie in dealing out donations for libraries and other institutions throughout England and America has treated Wisconsin most handsomely. But recently has the library given to Beloit college been completed and donated besides the structure which he donated to the Line City a number of years ago. In our own city, one of the finest buildings is the gift of Carnegie and the late Mr. Eldred. The other cities of Wisconsin which have been the recipients of library buildings are: Antigo, Baraboo, Eau Claire, Beloit, Berlin, Chippewa Falls, Darlington, Eau Claire, Green Bay, Hayward, Hudson, Kaukauna, Madison, Manitowish, Neenah, Racine, Rhinelander, Rice Lake, Richland Center, Ripon, Sheboygan, Sparta, Stevens Point, Superior, Virgona, Washburn, Wausau, Waupun and Wausau.

THE VALUE OF CHARCOAL.

Few People Know How Useful it is in Preserving Health and Beauty.

Nearly everybody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disinfectant and purifier in nature, but few realize its value when taken into the human system for the same cleansing purpose.

Charcoal is a remedy that the more you take of it the better; it is not a drug at all, but simply absorbs the poisons and impurities always present in the stomach and intestines and carries them out of the system.

Charcoal sweetens the breath after smoking, drinking or after eating onions and other odorous vegetables.

Charcoal effectually clears and improves the complexion, it whitens the teeth and further acts as a natural and eminently safe cathartic.

It absorbs the injurious gases which collect in the stomach and bowels; it disinfects the mouth and throat from the poison of catarrh.

All druggists sell charcoal in one form or another, but probably the best charcoal and the most for the money is in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges; they are composed of the finest powdered Willow charcoal, and other harmless antiseptics in tablet form or rather in the form of large, pleasant tasting lozenges, the charcoal being mixed with honey.

The daily use of these lozenges will soon tell in a much improved condition of the general health, better complexion, sweeter breath and purer blood, and the beauty of it is, that no possible harm can result from the continued use of them, but one the contrary, great benefit.

A Buffalo physician in speaking of the benefits of charcoal, says: I advise Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges to all patients suffering from gas in stomach and bowels, and to clear the complexion and purify the breath, mouth and throat. I also believe the liver is greatly benefited by the daily use of them; they cost but twenty-five cents a box at drug stores, and although in some sense a patent preparation, yet I believe I get more and better charcoal in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges than in any of the ordinary charcoal tablets."

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.

Half a dozen boys assembled in a pool room after school the other day and their bright, intelligent faces, as well as their names indicated that they came from good homes. When they commenced to talk, however, it was evident that they were victims of bad associations, for every other word was an oath or a vulgar expression of the loudest order.

The proprietor of the place was asked concerning the boys, and he said that two or three of them were tough, or were trying to be, and while he had talked to them about profanity and villainess, still they did not seem inclined to reform. The place was not a saloon, and it was difficult to determine just what influences were responsible for the boys' conduct.

Profanity and vulgarity, especially the latter are vices which do not belong to the saloon exclusively. They have their birth in the home and in the school, and the boy or girl of fifteen is frequently a past master in this kind of vice.

The average child of today is self-conscious. He knows too much about a good many things, and this knowledge tends to destroy the innocence of childhood.

The progress of the age is in a measure responsible for these conditions. Someone has said that the man who lives on allotted time today has seen more of life than did the patriarchs of old, and the statement is true. It is also true that the boy of fifteen and his sister, can give the old people pointers, which frequently amount to a revelation.

The generation which is rapidly vacating the field of action, was trained in the country school, and breathed the atmosphere of homes noted for simplicity and puritan restraint. The long winter evenings were sometimes monotonous, but never demoralizing. Obedience became second nature, and the mother expected the boy of 40 to observe her commands as cheerfully and unquestioningly as when he was a lad of ten, while the daughter never reached the age limit, so far as maternal authority was concerned.

The late J. P. Doe, for many years cashier of the First National Bank, came to Janesville in an early day, by stage coach from Buffalo. The old gentleman passed on before the days of telephones and electricity, but he lived long enough to feel the rush and strain of rapid advancement, and in speaking of it he said, "I think sometimes that the world would be better off with the stage coach than with the overhead liver. We used to take time to live, but now we rush through life with scarcely a breathing station."

But the age is progressive and the last decade has produced in discovery and invention many potent factors which are contributing largely to rapid development.

The spirit of progress is contagious, and men are fired with ambition to join the ranks and keep pace with the procession. In many cases this ambition leads to wild infatuation and all sorts of schemes are promoted to get rich quick. "Something for nothing" is the watchword and results are demoralizing to moral and business integrity.

It is an age of clubs and fads in society, an age of restlessness, both in the social and labor world, and the home suffers in consequence. The streets are lined every pleasant evening with boys and girls, out for no particular object except to while away an idle hour and have a good time.

The city of Chicago is just now agitated over this question of school children, and the bad influences which surround them in the early hours of the evening. The "Tribune" found upon recent investigation that some four hundred candy stores are being run in various part of the city, and supported almost exclusively by boys and girls.

Many of these resorts are nicely furnished, with good music in attendance, and as attractive as any beer hall in the city. Girls by the score assemble in the evening, where they are joined by school boys and a high old time follows. Slot machines and various gambling devices are common, and the work of premature ruin is so successfully conducted that the authorities are asked to take hold of the evil and suppress it.

This is child life in the city in this progressive age, and the island towns and cities are in about as deplorable condition. Something is radically wrong where such conditions exist and it is very evident that intemperance and the saloon are not the only evils.

These are days of ethical rather than home culture. Days when the church and society are regarded as more important than the home, which is the foundation of both. Days of theoretical and mythical reform, both in church and state, rather than the good old fashioned days, when common sense, common honesty, and every day morality were regarded as Christian graces of most vital importance.

If the world is to grow better as time advances, it will be because the home life is more wholesome, and so attractive that the child will find in it his rarest pleasure. The hardest man to reform is the man whose boyhood dates back to what was considered a good home, and the most difficult man for the church to reach is the man who is surrounded by church influences when a boy, and yet went astray.

It does not follow that a Christian home is an ideal home. It ought to be, but it requires more than long prayers and serious exhortation to attract child life. Better the prayer which is never uttered above a whisper, and the mind which grasps the situation and provides for the entertainment of the child, than the prayer alone with the faith that in some mysterious way it will be answered. The heavenly Father does not bring up children. That task is delegated to human hands. The group of boys in the pool room, and the little army of school children found on the streets will continue to be waifs, until the home wakes up to the fact that its first duty is to the child.

HOW TO MEET IT.
There is only one way for the merchant to meet mail order competition, and that is by publicity and prices. It is idle for him to think that people will trade with him simply because he keeps a good stock of goods and prides himself on being a public spirited citizen.

There is no sentiment about business, and prices are the only argument that produce results. The mail order catalogue is illustrated and every article in it is priced. While the prices may be no cheaper than Senator Frear of St. Croix county aspires to be an administration leader. He is preparing a railroad bill and is reported as saying that the railroads belong to the state, and that after paying a fair dividend, the profits belong to the state. Thus a life proposition is carried to its legitimate conclusion would mean confiscation. Such is reform.

The local merchant would quote, yet the fact remains that the merchant keeps quiet, while the mail order house furnishes the information that sells the goods.

If the merchants of Janesville will fill their announcements with prices and keep steadily at it for a year, they will capture much of the trade that now goes to mail order houses.

The election of United States Senator is purely political. If senator Quarles cannot be elected there is only one logical political candidate for the factions to unite on, and that is Isaac Stephenson of Marinette. His election will do more to harmonize the party than any other man named.

Ex-Governor Van Sant of Minnesota, discovered where he was at, in his candidacy for the Senate. The state endorsed reform and then went democratic to get rid of the farce. Wisconsin will wake up in due time.

PRESS COMMENT.

Oshkosh Northwestern: "Strange how soon the newness of a new year wears off."

La Crosse Chronicle: "It used to be Kansas; that we were all 'shamed of; now it is Colorado."

Milwaukee News: "Isn't Gov. La Follette needed in Wisconsin to fight the paper trust and the pulpwood combine?"

Evening Wisconsin: "Should the poisonous cabbage-snake invade the north, he will cause a panic among the consumers of smelt-kraut."

Milwaukee Sentinel: "The Boston Globe complains of 'all this quod on Boston's sidewalks.' 'Death saved Emerson from some severe shocks.'"

Racine Journal: "If the new primary law is worth anything at all it is worth precisely as much to nominate a senator this January as it will in other succeeding January's."

Superior Telegram: "From a printer's standpoint Port Arthur is so badly pined that it looks like an overgrown hick-box, with work enough sorting the pi back into the cases to keep the devil busy a year."

El Paso Herald: "Japan appreciates the value of her advertising she is getting and intends to capitalize it by holding a world's fair at Tokio as soon as the war with Russia closes—exact date as yet unsettled."

Memphis Scimitar: "The man who hasn't got something to sell, but he hasn't got, or buying something that he never expects to have actual possession of, is not particularly worried by a report of a panic on Wall street."

St. Louis Globe Democrat: "Last year the world produced only 170,000 ounces of platinum, of which the United States is credited with 110,000 ounces. As platinum is worth $19 an ounce American prospectors ought to give it more attention."

Superior Telegram: "The Chicago Journal says that a man of that city wants a divorce on the ground that he was out of his senses when he got married. That fellow is evidently trying to lay the foundation for general matrimonial amnesty."

La Crosse Tribune: "Much can be learned as to a man's characteristics by his physiognomy. See that hump. Note the luxuriously arched nose, the beaming brows, the heavy jaw! It all betokens a money clutch that would defy opinion and business conventionalities."

Fond du Lac Commonwealth: "According to the reports submitted at the cheesemakers' convention, now in session in Milwaukee, the value of the Wisconsin cheese product in 1904 was $10,000,000. The one state to beat the Badger record is New York, and that only by a few thousand dollars."

St. Paul Pioneer Press: "Port Arthur has been the foundation of Russia's dreams of empire in the far east. There might be Russian occupation of Manchuria without it, but it is safe to say that there will not be. The fall of that series of citadels probably puts an end forever to Russian domination in northern China even if it does not put an end to the dream of it. For Japan will not give up that position again. She will be asked again to relinquish it. Bager as Russia, Germany and France may be to bring about a relinquishment, the world's eyes limits to national audacity beyond which even the great powers do not care to go."

Rockford Register-Gazette: "Leslie's Weekly thinks that the party future at least both the great parties are likely to give the preference to young men for president. It says Mr. Roosevelt has settled that point. On entering the white house Lincoln was 52; Johnson 57; Grant 47; Hayes 54; Garfield 49; Arthur 57; Cleveland 48; Harrison 55; McKinley 48; Roosevelt 43. Charles S. Denen will just have passed his 45th birthday when he is inaugurated as president, he having been born May 4, 1862."

Evening Wisconsin: "Think of the unfortunate tenantry living on Lord Freyne's French Park estate in the county of Koscconon, Ireland. The hamlet of Cloonsheever, consisting of forty or fifty one-story whitewashed cottages, lay in the track of a moving bog, which swept down upon it a week ago Sunday, burying the houses beneath water and peat and imperiling the lives of their occupants. The well-tilled farms have been covered, and many of the houses have disappeared, while of the others all that can be seen is the chimney tops. The inhabitants have been made homeless wanderers, by the calamity, which seems to have come upon them without warning. Contemporaneously with this strange report from Ireland comes the announcement from Porto Rico that a small blood-sucking intestinal hook worm is playing havoc among the people of that island. No less than 30 per cent of the deaths in Porto Rico are attributed to this worm. Contrasted with what is reported of the ravages of the hook worm in Porto Rico, the havoc wrought by the Irish floating bog seems a small affair. American physicians are endeavoring to discover a specific that will keep the parasite at bay."

You Must Sleep.

If you cannot, it is due to an irritated or congested state of the brain, which will soon develop into nervous prostration. Nature demands sleep, and it is as important as food; it is a part of her building and sustaining process. This period of unconsciousness relaxes the mental and physical strain, and allows nature to restore exhausted vitality.

Dr. Miles' Nervine brings refreshing sleep, because it soothes the irritation and removes the congestion.

It is also a nerve builder; it nourishes and strengthens every nerve in your body, and creates energy in all the organs.

Nothing will give strength and vitality as surely and quickly as Dr. Miles' Nervine.

"During the past winter I had two attacks of La Grippe which left me very weak, and in bad condition. I was so nervous I could not sleep. My wife, after trying different remedies, went for a doctor. The doctor was out, and a neighbor recommended Dr. Miles' Nervine, and she brought home a bottle. I had not slept for some time, and had terrible pains in my head. After taking a few doses of Nervine the pain was not so severe, and I slept. I am now taking the second bottle, and am very much improved."

JENNIE M. SMITH, Underhill, Vt.

Dr. Miles' Nervine is sold by your druggist, who will guarantee that the first bottle will benefit. If it fails, he will refund your money.

GOLDEN WEDDING
WAS CELEBRATEDMR. AND MRS. JACOB WALRATH
MARRIED FIFTY YEARS.

RESIDE IN TOWN OF FULTON.

Mr. Walrath Came To Janesville Sixty-one Years Ago—Lived In Fulton Sixty.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Walrath, pioneer residents of Rock county, celebrated their golden wedding Monday in the town of Fulton, where they have always lived since being united in marriage. About sixty friends gathered at their home and the day spent was one always to be remembered. The rooms were very beautifully decorated and the scene within was a pretty one. An elegant three-course dinner was served, after which card playing was indulged in and a social chat of the olden time was enjoyed. Upon leaving the guests presented Mr. and Mrs. Walrath with a beautiful gift, a symbol of their love and esteem, and departed for their homes with best wishes for their host and hostess.

Sixty-one Years Ago
Jacob Walrath is a man of four score and three winters. He was born in Stockholm, Onondaga county, N. Y., and when twenty-two years of age came west. He traveled by way of the Erie canal to Buffalo and over the great lakes to Racine, completing his route to this city overland. The first year he spent in Wisconsin was in Janesville. At that time there were, but few buildings where now stands handsome business blocks, large factories and beautiful residences. On the west side of the river there were but two buildings—J. B. Doe kept a small drygoods store in one and the other was the brick structure in which was housed the Old Academy. On the east side of the Rock there was a small wood structure, where now stands the Myers house. The only men who were residents of Janesville at that time are still here: Volney Atwood, E. G. Fifield, Hon. Hamilton Richardson and R. J. Richardson. Across the river in the place where Milwaukee street bridge now spans was a cheap wooden toll bridge.

Many of the improvements that have been made in Rock county Mr. Walrath has worked on. He aided in the construction of the first dams across the Rock at Indian Ford and the one at Janesville and helped also to build the dam at Freeport, Illinois.

Four Generations
Mrs. Walrath is sixty-seven years of age. On January 2, 1855 she was united in marriage to Mr. Walrath, her name formerly being Miss Margaret Dooley. Mr. and Mrs. Walrath are the parents of four children, two sons and two daughters: G. S. Walrath of Pittsburg, Pa., Grant Walrath of Fulton, Mrs. J. S. Earle of Janesville and Mrs. Ada Johnson also of this city. They are the grand-parents of seven grand-children and of one great-grandchild.

ECHOES FROM THE LAND OF BURNSConcert Of Miss Jessie McLachlan
And Her Company Pleased
Last Evening.

Those who are not familiar with the Scottish dialect might have wished at the concert last evening could have been in English wording. However, the audience was composed largely of those to whom the dialect of the land of heather is ever a source of delight. Miss Jessie McLachlan possesses a beautiful voice of considerable range and a pleasing stage presence. She was recalled after every number and there was much disappointment when she failed to respond to an encore for the duet with Douglas Young—"The Crooket Bawbee." This song was in the nature of a dialogue with a humorous denouement and entailed considerable acting which seemed to delight the audience. Scott's "Blue Bonnets" with the march of the soldiery—now near—now far away—was a very effective number and in its rendition, according to the judgment of some, Miss McLachlan was at her best. John McLinden made the collo tell strange thrilling tales of war and famine, sun-glinted hills and smiling valleys, flight of birds, and dancing gnomes and fairies in secret wood and cavern. He has excellent technique and his work was thoroughly appreciated. Douglas Young has a pure tenor voice and made a good impression. Robert Buchanan as pianist and conductor performed his part to the satisfaction of everyone. There was a fair-sized audience present.

TOUCHING MEMORIAL
TO LITTLE BLIND GIRLMembers of Faculty of State School
Carry Flowers to Edith Mc-
Glauchlin's Funeral.

Beautiful white and pink carnations trimmed with ferns and smilax made a touching memorial offering from Supt. C. R. Showalter and members of the faculty of the state school for the blind at the funeral of Edith McGlauchlin five miles northeast of the city Wednesday afternoon. Not only did the school send the floral gift to the funeral of the little blind girl, but it was represented by Mrs. Showalter, L. W. Brooks, Miss E. Parks and Miss M. A. Turner of the teaching or clerical force. The funeral was an impressive one throughout. Rev. T. T. Creswell officiating and music being furnished by Misses Ruby Carlick and Laveria Askin. I was largely attended, many being present from Beloit. The Beloit News.

CURRENT NEWS NOTES.

Joseph L. Hay to Lead: The men's meeting at the Y. M. C. A. building tomorrow afternoon at 3:00 o'clock will be led by Joseph L. Hay, stock clerk at the Janesville Machine company. His topic will be the "Golden Rule—Do unto others as you would have them do unto you."

Sent Back to Broodhead: Because Samuel DeGroat stayed around the city much to the annoyance of the police and politely declined to leave, he was given a ticket to Broodhead, a gift from the city, and put on the train bound for that place this morning.

A New Arrival: Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Hanson, Milton avenue, are the parents of a ten-pound baby girl which was born yesterday.

Wedded Here Today: At three o'clock this afternoon E. P. Wray of Chicago secured a special dispensation from Judge Sale, permitting him to wed Madeline Becker of the same city at once. The ceremony was to have been performed as soon as arrangements for the ceremony could be made.

To Charge Jury Monday: Arguments in the action of Beaman & Smith Co. vs. The Berlin Machine works were concluded in circuit court today and Judge Dunwiddie will charge the jury on Monday.

Dangerous Fun: Young boys sliding down the Court street hill under dark not only endanger their own lives but also the lives of pedestrians. Despite the efforts of the police last evening several small youths evaded the minions of the law and enjoyed themselves.

Is It Oleo? A farmer recently sold a five-pound jar of butter to a prominent business man that smells like butter, tastes like butter, is the color of butter, yet will not melt. Samples have been sent to the pure food commission to determine what the ingredients really are.

THE '03 CROP OF
TOBACCO NOT GOOD.1904 Was Poor Year For Weed
Growers—Tobacco Below
Contract Price.

The year just closed, says the Wisconsin Tobacco Reporter, will go into history as one of the leanest ones the tobacco growers of Wisconsin have ever experienced, so far as relates to the 1903 crop, the greater portion of which has been moved during the year. Advanced sales had been made of quite a large portion of the crop previous to its real character being known, but when delivery was attempted and the imperfections of the curing became apparent, growers were compelled to accept large reductions from contract price. Probably nearly two-thirds of the crop was filled during the parking season but the average price was lower than growers expected, and the low standard then fixed has prevailed since during the movement of the balance, which has been going on during the closing months of the year. The crop has certainly brought no profit to the producer and placed the business somewhat into disrepute, making it possible for the sugar beet people to secure a good deal of acreage heretofore devoted to tobacco culture. Packers who invested in 1903 Wisconsin also suffered considerably as the result of damage to the crop in passing through the sweating process. Had it not been that the tobacco was brought very low they could not have thrown out so large a percent without sustaining serious losses. O' what there was left of the really serviceable stock they have been able to realize a fair margin of profit and most cases able to save themselves on their investment. The trading in cheaper grades the past few months has been conducted with less risk on the quick sale and small profit basis. The year's business in Wisconsin leaf can hardly be termed satisfactory from almost any point of view as dealer or grower.

Books From the Forest.

A youngish man strolling through a wood remarked sentimentally to his companion: "I once upon a time had an interest in 4,000 trees that grew here." "How did that happen?" he was asked. "My latest novel," he explained, "had a circulation of 4,000,000 copies, and the paper on which it was printed was made of wood fiber—cellulose—requiring about 4,000 trees."

CHAPTER XXI.

A BORROWED CONSCIENCE.

"WHY HAVE YOU DONE THIS, ELLINOR?"

"I wish I knew just how to 'take that,' he said dubiously.

"I wish I knew how to make you understand," she returned; and then: "I could have made the other David Kent understand."

"You are in duty bound to try to make this one understand, don't you think? You spoke of a danger which was not the violent kind, such as Loring fears. What is it?"

"You have had two whole days," she rejoined. "Haven't you discovered it?"

"I haven't found anything to fear but failure," was his reply.

"That is it; you have given it a name—its only true name—failure."

"But I am not going to fail."

"You mean you are going to take our railroad away from these men who have stolen it?"

"That is what I mean."

"And you will do it by threatening to expose them?"

"I shall tell Governor Bucks what I know about the oil field deal, assuring him that I shall publish the facts if he doesn't let the law take its course in ousting Judge MacFarlane and the receiver."

IT WILL KEEP

She rose and stood before him, leaning against one of the vine-clad porch pillars with her hands behind her.

"David Kent, are there any circumstances in which you would accept a bribe?"

He answered her in all seriousness.

"They say every man has his price. Mine is higher than any bid they have yet made—or can make, I hope."

"Why don't you let them bribe you?" she asked coolly. "Is it because it is inexpedient—because there is more 'success' the other way?"

He tried to emulate her coolness and made a failure of it.

"Have I ever done anything to make you think I had thrown common honesty and self-respect overboard?" he demanded.

Her answer was another question, sharp-edged and well thrust home.

"Is it any worse to take a bribe than it is to give one? You have just admitted that you are going to buy the governor's neutrality, you know."

"I don't see it in that light at all."

"The other David Kent would have seen it. He would have said: These men are public criminals. If I cannot bring them to justice, I can at least expose them to the scorn of all good men. Therefore I have no right to bargain with them."

Kent was silent for a long time. When he spoke it was to say:

"Why have you done this, Elinor?"

Loring and Penelope were coming out, and the end of their privacy was at hand.

AFTERNOON TOILETTE OF CHIFFON BROADCLOTH

The chiffon broadcloths lend themselves beautifully to the craze for applique effects that seems to have taken hold of the dressmaker and her customers alike. In the illustration the appliques are of cloth mounted upon a fine net, and the floral sprays or bunches have been cut from a pompadour silk and treated similarly. The blouse is arranged upon surplus lines, with a lace chemise bordered with applique, the upper sleeve of the same, with the lower sleeve of chiffon and a cuff tucked monseine. The skirt shows the new tunic scantily draped above the circular flounce, which is finished at the edge with ruchings of chiffon, repeating the colors in the pompadour appliques. The centre shows two shades of rose pink satin with a rich Jacqueminot red velvet fold at the upper edge. The sash is irregularly draped, the highest point coming towards the right arm, and a decided slope from the front to the back, where short ends are bunched and fastened together with the buttons that decorate the front and sides.

CHRONIC SORES

Wheeling, W. Va., May 28, 1903. Some years ago while at work, I fell over a truck and severely injured both of my shins. My blood became poisoned as a result, and the doctor told me I would have running sores for life, and that if they were healed up the result would be fatal. Under this discouraging report I left off their treatment and resorted to the use of S. S. S. Its effects were prompt and gratifying. It took only a short while for the medicine to entirely cure up the sores, and I am not dead as the doctors intimated, nor have the sores ever broke out again. Some 12 years have elapsed since what I have described occurred. Having been so significantly benefited by its use I can heartily recommend it as the one great blood purifier.

JOHN W. FUNDIS.

Care Schmulback Brewing Co.

Chronic sores start often from a pimple, scratch, bruise or boil, and while salves, washes and powders are beneficial, the unhealthy matter in the blood must be driven out or the sore will continue to eat and spread. S. S. S. reaches these old sores through the blood, removes all impurities and poisons, builds up the entire system and strengthens the circulation. S. S. S. is a blood purifier and tonic combined. Contains no mineral whatever but is guaranteed purely vegetable. If you have an old sore write us and our physicians will advise without charge. Book on diseases of the blood free.
